

Commission a New Choral Work for $1 - $100 (or free)!

If you missed the first announcement on ChoralNet about this unique, first-time, low- or no-cost Commission Project that is taking place from July 15 until October 15, 2012:

More than 30 talented, highly-motivated composers are participating in this special project, and for a limited time you can commission one of them (or more than one) to write a special piece of music for YOUR choir. (More composers have joined the project since the first announcement in July.)

In return for a brand new piece that meets your standards and is provided on time, you will guarantee a premiere public performance of the work and provide the composer with a nice audio recording of the piece (not necessarily of the premiere).

Some, but not all, composers request a very modest fee, ranging from $1 - $100. Most composers reside in the United States (but are willing to work with any choir, anywhere), and the list also includes one composer each from Barbados, France, Sweden, and England (ditto).

This special project is open to all choir directors and choirs everywhere who have never before commissioned a choral work. Interested? See <http://www.choralnet.org/view/384044> for all the project details and information about each composer.

Not quite sure how to participate? Please also see <http://www.choralnet.org/392961> for solid advice on how to successfully commission a piece from a composer.
